Energy Policy:
Total electricity and water production increased in 2004 over the same period in 2003. Electricity demand has been on the rise due to two main factors: an expansion in the commercial sector due to an increase in small businesses and the drop in air-conditioning prices which led to an increase in purchases as well as electricity usage.

JURISDICTIONAL RESOURCES

Capital:
Philipsburg;
Political System:
Parliamentary. The Antilles is governed by a popularly elected unicameral "Staten" (parliament) of 22 members. It chooses a prime minister (called minister president) and a Council of Ministers consisting of six to eight other ministers. A governor, who serves a 6-year term, represents the monarch of the Netherlands. Local government is assigned authority independently on each island. Under the direction of a kingdom-appointed island governor, these local governments have a "Bestuurscollege" (administrative body) made up of commissioners who head the separate government departments.

Political Parties:
2007 Election results: Democratische Partij (DP) - six seats National Alliance (NA) - five seats People's Progressive Alliance (PPA) - 0 Democratic Labour Party (DLP) - 0 National Democratic Party (NDP) - 0 St. Maarten People's Believers Independent Movement (SPBIM) - 0

Important Legislation:
June 2000, Sint Maarten held a nonbinding referendum in which 69% of the population voted for status aparte—independence from the federation within the Kingdom of the Netherlands. A planned restructuring of the Netherlands Antilles would see Sint Maarten become a separate country within the Kingdom of the Netherlands (like the Netherlands Antilles are now) on December 15, 2008.

Principal Taxes:
Overall government revenues declined slightly by less than 1 percent in the first six months of 2004 over this period in 2003. This was attributable mainly to decreases in income tax and "other" revenues. The largest contributor towards total collected government revenues was wage tax; a moderate increase of approximately six percent relative to last year was recorded. (June 2004)

Associated Power:
Netherlands Antilles.

Citizenship:
Dutch Antillean. EU passport.

Paradiplomacy:
The island area of Sint Maarten is ruled by an island council, an executive council, and an administrator (gezaghebber in Dutch) appointed by the Dutch Crown. The Netherlands Antilles conducts foreign affairs primarily through the Dutch Government. However, the Netherlands Antilles recently has strengthened its relations with other Caribbean governments. It has been granted observer status at the Caribbean Community (CARICOM), and in December 1998, signed an agreement with the Association of Caribbean States (ACS) that made the Netherlands Antilles an associate member.

HISTORY AND CULTURE

History:
The Dutch were the first to colonize Sint Maarten in 1631, but within 2 years the Spanish invaded and evacuated the settlers. The Dutch failed in an attempt to regain the island in 1644, but 4 years later the Spanish abandoned the island of their own accord. In 1648 the island was divided between the Dutch and the French; however, complete control of the island was seized numerous times in a series of conflicts. The British became involved as well, taking power for first 6 and then 10 years. Finally, in 1817, the current partition line between the Netherlands and France was established. The island flourished under a slave-based plantation economy and the exportation of salt until abolition of slavery in 1863.

Referenda:
The Netherlands Antilles is to be disbanded by December 15, 2008.
